

RACES & JOBS

The races of Ivalice are as colorful and unique as the world they reside in. Race determines a character's possible jobs.

WHAT IS A JOB?

Each race in Ivalice has strengths and weaknesses, and can perform particular jobs that reflect the race's specialties. There are 34 jobs total, separated into Normal jobs and Expert jobs. Expert jobs usually require a character to learn a certain number of Action abilities (A-abilities) from one or two Normal jobs. Try out many job combinations to create unique characters whose job abilities compliment each other. The table to the right provides examples of jobs that are strong in certain statistical areas.

HUMAN

Humans are the most common and most well-rounded race in Ivalice. They have the widest variety of job options, ranging from White Mage to Fighter to Hunter. Additionally, Humans can perform five Expert jobs, a number matched only by the Viera. The only Expert job that Humans share with another race is Illusionist. Humans perform all of their jobs well—the stats for each job are approximately equal.

BANGAA

The Bangaa are a fierce and brave lizardlike race (but don't ever call them lizards!) known throughout Ivalice for their gruff attitudes and brute force in battle. Bangaa have characteristically high HP, Weapon Attack and Weapon Defense, but low MP, Magic Power and Magic Resistance. Their jobs reflect their unmatched skill with large weaponry, as well as their strong defense against physical attacks. Bangaa are often the best choice for the frontline of a battle.

nu mou

Nu Mou are quiet types and are most comfortable aiding their clan with defensive and offensive magic. Nu Mou jobs encompass some of the strongest magic-based jobs in all of Ivalice. Nu Mou have incredibly high Magic Power, but their Weapon Attack is low. In battle, they prefer to attack enemies from long range. Only Nu Mou can be Alchemists, Morphers and Sages.

VIERA

The Viera are a beautiful and proud female-only race. Their slender forms and long ears heighten their senses and speed. Some in Ivalice even say they can speak to the spirit realm. Mystery and spirituality encompass the Viera and their jobs. Though their Defense is low, Viera agility and finesse are unmatched by any other race. The Viera have five racially unique jobs, all of which focus on elements of speed, spirituality and stealth.

MOOGLE

Moogles are Ivalice's smallest and most mischievous race. They love to play tricks and have fun, which is reflected in their unique Expert jobs. Moogles have high Weapon Defense and Magic Resistance, but their HP, Weapon Attack and Magic Power are low. Even in battle, Moogles are all about bringing colorful fun and trickery to the table with jobs such as Juggler, Gunner and Gadgeteer. Moogles are best suited to long-range combat.

SOLDIER

BATTLE TECH

HUMAN

Soldier is a standard Human job. While Soldiers aren't going to overwhelm anyone with tricky moves, they can rush into a room-clearing melee with the best of them.

SENSOR

Sensor allows you to scan an enemy for hidden weapons or items. Once you detect an item, you can steal it with the proper Thief ability—you must detect a hidden item before it can be stolen. The charts for main missions and Subquests will display an enemy's hidden items in red.

PALADIN

CHIVALRY

HUMAN

The Paladin is a defense-minded job with decent offensive numbers but a fairly low Evade rating. You must master two of the Soldier's A-abilities to become a Paladin.

DOUBLESBOT

Doubleshot lets you hit an enemy twice in the same turn. The attack's damage rate will drop, but you can still do a lot of damage once you reach a high level of experience.

ANIMIST

CALL

MOOGLE

Plucky Animists fight by calling on various animals to help them. Animist abilities don't do a ton of damage, but they provide great support in the middle of battles—Cuisine is especially good.
